To the Reader.

RAVELLING long Journeys is costly, at all times troublesome, at some times dangerous : Yet is it both a general and generous desire of most men to be acquainted with their native Country.

To satisfie them herein, this work is set forth ; where thou mayest crosse Rivers without Boat or Bridge, climbe up Mountains without pains, and goe down without danger : in a word thy eye may safely travell in a few houres over all Eng-land,

The Epistle to the Reader.

land, this Book presenting the Towns and Villages thereof, alphabetically methodized, with the addition of their respective Counties, Hundreds, &c.

Now know this was collected by the appointment (at the charge, and for the use) of that worthy Antiquarie Sir Henry Spelman, one of whom too much cannot be said in his commendation; As who confuted that aspersion which is generally cast on Antiquaries, that they are either supercilious or superstitious, either proud or popishly affected, such his humble carriage to all persons and sincerity in the Protestant Religion!

Now it is enough to perswade others of the usefullnesse of this Treatise, that so learned a man would cause it to be composed for his private perusall; and because things of this nature the more publique the more profitable, what formerly was confined to his Study is now enlarged for the benefit of all who please to make use thereof.

None can be so unreasonable as to expect that this Work should descend to the specifying of the names of single Houses, it being impossible to grinde it so small as to powder. What Dragg-Net is so capable, or can be so cast, to catch all Minams that come under it? the performance therein will be satisfactory to rational Readers if all considerable Villages be particularized.

Yet we believe the charitable Reader carries such a Chancery in his bosome as to pardon some omisions, if casually some places have escaped observation. Catalogues in this kinde cannot be begun and finished at once, or by one Man, (though never so industrious) but require a contribution of many well disposed persons for the completing thereof.

And therefore if any shall be pleased to return to the Printer hereof the names of such places as have slip't his notice, he shall have the hearty thanks for, and the World the benefit by his instructions in the next Edition hereof.

It is also desired, that where faults are committed mitted in false spelling of names, such as dwell in the places (presumed the exactest Criticks in their own Orthographie) would be pleased to amend them and return their emendations, that where the tongue of this Edition hath lisped or faltered, it may speak plainer and truer in the next, if it shall survive thereunto.
